Award-Winning Actor & Director

MANUEL FERRARA

Manuel Ferrara entered the adult industry in 1997 after winning a French casting call competition. He works in both European and American pornography. Originally Ferrara was a protégé of Rocco Siffredi and he made his American acting debut in John Stagliano's Fashionistas. The prolific actor has been described as being 'super well-endowed' and has had an enviable and award-winning career. In 2003 he expanded his work to include directing duties for a variety of adult companies, and he's been directing films for Evil Angel Productions since 2006. In addition to directing more than a dozen successful series for Evil Angel Productions, Ferrara was recently honored by becoming only the second actor to win AVN's Male Performer of the Year award three times. We'd like to thank Manuel and Evil Angel for their assistance in making this interview possible.

UC: How did you first get involved in the adult business?

MF: I was a porn fan, and I saw an ad in a French magazine called Connexion. It was a casting call for male performers. It's a bit of a funny story. About 50 guys showed up and we were interviewed one at a time by a team of two girls. We were told that they would pick the top five guys. I was one of the five. The thing we didn't realize at the time is that once they picked the finalists, we had to shoot the scene right on the spot!

UC: What misconceptions do people typically have about you and/or your work?

MF: People are surprised to learn that I'm shy with women I don't know. In a club, they need to approach me because I won't make the first approach.

UC: What do you most enjoy about directing?

MF: Nothing! (Laughs.) Seriously, the best part for me about directing is that I can pick who I work with. I get to enjoy steamy sex with women I want instead of having to work with someone else's choice for me.

UC: Do you enjoy specializing in one genre or do you prefer variety in the types of films you work on?

MF: I love variety. Sometimes I'm in the mood for a horror film and sometimes a comedy. It's the same with porn. Sometimes I could jack off to a good intro that leads to the sex, or sometimes I want to go straight to the action. The Fucked on Sight series is for people in the mood for a POV blowjob movie and Raw (Manuel's recent series, now at volume three) is for a more intimate, non-porn feeling that's about how it is off the set. People like variety whether they're the audience or in my case, the director.

UC: What are the key factors in making an adult film successful?

Photos: Evil Angel

MF: In the restaurant business they say the three things are “location, location, location.” In adult movies it’s “casting, casting, casting.”

UC: What differentiates your product from others in the marketplace that are similar in nature?

MF: The difference is me. I have my own way of performing. It’s about the connection I have with the girl that makes it special between us.

UC: How do you feel about films with more “gonzo” than storyline? Do you feel that adult films need to have more of a plot than they typically have?

MF: Gonzo is what I like. Sometimes a feature is good too, but only if the story is there to support the sex, not the other way around. Personally, I hate parodies. I think they’re ruining the business for the sake of a quick buck. The sex is secondary...and that’s not good.

UC: If you had no limitations on budget, location, cast, etc, describe your “dream film.”

MF: As a director, my dream film is me not directing it or at least not having all the stress that goes with that. As a performer, my dream film is me having sex with the stars I never had a chance to work with. It would be the women from when I was a fan -- Draghixa Laurent and Julia Chanel (French stars), Tiffany Million, Zara White, and Kobe Thai.

UC: Do you think it’s important for actors to wear condoms in adult films?

MF: My first three years in the business I worked only with a condom. The very first time in my life I had sex without a condom was on a Rocco Siffredi set. This was the first time in my entire life, not just on film. I’m part of that generation. Our videos are created by professionals under controlled circumstances that the viewers don’t see. Adult movies are a fantasy, not an example of real life behavior.

UC: Do you try to convey a message to your audience through your films?

MF: No, there’s no message at all. It’s not what I want to do.

UC: Other than obvious technological advances, do you think today’s porn differs much from the porn of yesteryear?

MF: Definitely. We’ve gone from porno theaters to the Internet. Things changed. This guy named John Stagliano started gonzo. (Stagliano’s Evil Angel distributes Ferrara’s DVDs.) The sex has changed. It’s stronger and more athletic. There was good sex in movies before and in the newer movies there’s sometimes sex that’s aggressive for the sake of being hard without the real intensity which isn’t good either. The porn from yesterday compared to today isn’t necessarily better or worse, it’s just different.

UC: What direction do you think the industry will take in the next five years? Do you foresee any major changes?

MF: The changes are happening right now. The Internet did change everything.

UC: What projects do you have in the works at this time?

MF: Slutty & Sluttier 11 hits the streets March 12th, and right now I’m shooting Evil Anal 11 and Phat Bottom Girls 3.

UC: You’ve won many awards. Any comment about that? (As previously mentioned, Manuel just won Male Performer of the Year at the 2010 AVN Awards for the third time.)

MF: I’m honored, but it isn’t what motivates me at all. I want to make the hottest adult videos that people enjoy and use to get off. That’s the award I’m after. Always. UC
